Presented by the McMaster Collaborative for Health and Aging and Diabetes Action Canada

Are you interested in exploring ways to promote fairness and inclusion in your engagement of older adults and caregivers? Want to share and learn creative ways to advance your approaches to patient-oriented research and partnership? This interactive workshop will be co-led by researchers, older adults and trainees from the McMaster Collaborative for Health and Aging and Diabetes Action Canada, two organizations supporting the implementation of Canada's Strategy for Patient-Oriented Research (SPOR).

This workshop will draw on best practices, introduce different approaches and activities for engagement and facilitate discussions about power, equity, and ethics in patient-oriented research. Participants will be directed to resources and tools to support ongoing learning and actions beyond the session.

Workshop participants should come ready to discuss a research project (at any phase, from idea to completion) and how relevant older adults and caregivers could be, or were, meaningfully engaged across all stages of the research. The workshop will include: a presentation on different engagement methods, key considerations, impact and challenges with research done in partnership with older adults and caregivers; a fireside chat between an older adult partner and an academic researcher about their journey of partnership on an aging-focused study, and; small group discussions, co-facilitated by a researcher, trainee, and an older adult, where participants will discuss their engagement plans and collaboratively explore the considerations presented.

This session is open to current students and recent graduates (2 years) only.

The aim of this event is to discuss, create, and support mutually beneficial relationships among emerging and experienced scholars in the gerontology community. The session will include a panel discussion on mentorship experiences, and there will be opportunity to engage with others in small and large group discussions focused on how gerontologists, emerging and experienced, learn about aging research, practice, teaching, and mentorship. The session will consider how an engaged community of gerontologists can be facilitated and supported through a variety of mentorship experiences during and after CAG2023.

Cet événement a pour objectif de discuter des moyens de créer et de soutenir des relations mutuellement bénéfiques entre chercheurs émergents et chercheurs chevronnés dans le milieu de la gérontologie. La séance comprendra une table ronde sur les expériences de mentorat, et offrira la possibilité de participer à des discussions en petits ou grands groupes sur les voies par lesquelles les gérontologues, émergents et chevronnés, s'informent sur la recherche, la pratique, l'enseignement et le mentorat en matière de vieillissement. Les intervenants et les participants seront invités à réfléchir aux moyens de faciliter la création et

The community-based seniors' services (CBSS) sector is made up of community-based organizations that provide seniors with access to a range of low-barrier programs in seven core areas: nutritional supports; health and wellness programs; physical activity; education, recreation and creative arts; information, referral and personal advocacy; transportation; and affordable housing. These programs and services are offered through a range of municipal and non-profit agencies including: senior centres; community centres; neighbourhood houses; community coalitions; ethno-cultural organizations; and multi-service non-profit societies. United Way British Columbia, HelpAge Canada and other CBSS Partners invite you to learn more about the CBSS sector and network with CBSS sector members and researchers. The first half of the event will include an introduction to the CBSS sector and presentations by United Way British Columbia, Healthy Aging Alberta, and HelpAge Canada on the work being done provincially and nationally to connect and build the capacity of the CBSS sector across Canada. The second half of the event will consist of a networking event that will allow attendees to connect and build relationships with members of the CBSS sector, researchers working with or interested in working with the sector, and other CBSS partners. Information will also be provided on how you can get involved with the upcoming pan-Canadian Summit on Aging.

Le secteur des services communautaires aux aînés (SCA) est constitué d'organismes communautaires qui offrent aux personnes âgées une gamme de programmes d'accès facile dans huit domaines de base : nutrition; santé et mieux-être; activité physique; éducation; loisirs et arts créatifs; information, orientation et défense des droits individuels; transport et logement abordable. Ces organismes comprennent différentes agences municipales et organisations sans but lucratif, notamment : centres pour aînés; centres communautaires; foyers de quartier; coalitions communautaires; organisations ethno-culturelles et associations multi-services sans but lucratif. Centraide Colombie-Britannique, Aide aux aînés Canada et d'autres partenaires de SCA vous invitent à élargir votre connaissance de ce secteur et à en rencontrer des intervenants et chercheurs. La première moitié de l'événement comprendra une introduction au secteur des SCA et des présentations de Centraide Colombie-Britannique, de Healthy Aging Alberta et d'Aide aux aînés Canada sur le travail effectué à l'échelle provinciale et nationale pour interrelier le secteur des SCA et en développer la capacité dans l'ensemble du Canada. La deuxième moitié de l'événement sera consacrée au réseautage afin de permettre aux participants de créer des liens et de développer des relations avec des membres du secteur des SCA, des chercheurs qui sont engagés dans ce secteur ou s'y intéressent et d'autres partenaires. Une information sera également fournie sur les modalités de participation au prochain Sommet pancanadien sur le vieillissement.

Presentation type Workshop / Atelier

In an era marked by rapid technological advancements for health and social care, the imperative to develop a vision of aging that is equitable and human-centred is increasingly important. This 1.5-hour workshop will delve into multifaceted dimensions of aging and uncover opportunities to redefine the aging experience across the lifespan. The workshop goal is to paint a vibrant vision of a future where innovation helps older adults increase their healthspan and live connected and fulfilling lives.

A keynote address from Dr. John Beard (Irene Diamond Professor of Productive Aging and Director of the International Longevity Center-USA in the Robert N. Butler Columbia Aging Center) will share a vision for a future where older adults receive the care and support they need, where they need it. This will be followed by researchers in the aging and innovation space to deliver Pecha Kucha (five slides in five minutes) presentations on their cutting-edge research. Finally, a panel of experts will engage in a lively discussion, delving into successes and challenges, and the importance of creating an inclusive and culturally appropriate model of aging that is affordable, efficient, and desirable.

Facilitators:

Dr. Jennifer Campos, AGE-WELL, Toronto Rehab – UHN
Dr. Josephine McMurray, AGE-WELL, Wilfrid Laurier University
Dr. John Muscedere, Canadian Frailty Network, Queen's University

À une époque de rapides progrès technologiques dans le domaine de la santé et des services sociaux, l'impératif de concevoir une vision du vieillissement qui soit équitable et centrée sur l'humain devient de plus en plus important. Cet atelier d'une heure et demie explorera les multiples dimensions du vieillissement et révélera des possibilités d'en redéfinir les contours tout au long de la vie. Le but de l'atelier est d'esquisser une vision dynamique d'un avenir où l'innovation aide les personnes âgées à accroître leur espérance de santé et à mener des vies connectées et épanouissantes.

Dans une conférence magistrale, le Dr John Beard (professeur Irene Diamond en vieillissement productif et directeur de l'International Longevity Center-USA du Robert N. Butler Columbia Aging Center) communiquera sa vision d'un avenir où les personnes âgées reçoivent les soins et le soutien dont ils ont besoin en temps et lieu opportuns. Des chercheurs en vieillissement et innovation livreront ensuite des présentations Pecha Kucha (cinq diapos en cinq minutes) sur leurs travaux de pointe. Enfin, une table ronde d'experts s'engagera dans un débat animé sur les succès et les défis, et sur l'importance de créer un modèle de vieillissement inclusif et culturellement approprié qui soit abordable, efficace et désirable.

Track Symposium

Presentation type Symposium

Chaired and Organized by Amanda Grenier and Denise Cloutier

Introductory Remarks by Anne Martin Matthews

This symposium gathers colleagues of Dr. Karen Midori Kobayashi, a year after her passing, to honour and celebrate the lasting impact she had on Canadian gerontology. Dr Kobayashi was an exemplary collaborative researcher, successful grant award winner and supervisory mentor. She also held significant roles at the University of Victoria, the CIHR Institutes of Aging, the Alzheimer's Society, AGE-WELL and CAG. This symposium is designed as an open circle to remember and carry forward Dr Kobayashi's legacy. Colleagues from across the country will share examples focused on the critical contributions that Dr. Kobayashi brought to gerontology through her compelling research on age inequalities, racialization and immigration, family forms, innovative methodologies, and social barriers to healthy aging. In addition to discussing Dr Kobayashi's academic accomplishments, symposium participants will reflect on her inclusive leadership, building career pathways for students and emerging scholars, envisioning of collegial spaces in which to gather, share and mobilize knowledge, and advocating for older people through her collaborative community-engaged research. Contributors to this symposium will highlight how her ideas and energy have enlivened and inspired the gerontological community and conclude by drawing attention to the social issues and critical areas vital to healthy and equitable aging futures that still need addressing in her absence.
